was not so strong as to cause any alarm. the storm became heavier, however, and after the steamer had passed Pellio Passage it was feared she was doomed About 11 o'clock, when about four miles off Chesogyin Point, it was decided to send the women ashore in the boat, and J. M. Flemming, third officer; Wilson Cook, acting quartermaster; Nehemiah Murphy second officer, and Captain Smith volunteered to take them ashore. The women numbered three, Elsie McDonald, aged sixteen, daughter of Alex. McDonald, of Yarmouth; Kate Smith, of Yarmouth, stewardess, and a colored girl whose name I did not know. The women were got into the boat with great difficulty, the volunteers following and getting the boat away. The wind was blowing on shore at the time and the boat was carried rapidly

When the boat got away they were preparing on board to launch another, but I think it got away. I think all the rest were lost. The first boat was rapidly driven ashore near Pembroke, and in nearing the land a gigantic wave struck and threw it upon the shore, smashing it to atoms. I found myself on the beach hold-

British Dispatch Boat Sunk and Other Warships in Danger.

HONG-KONG, Nov. 10 .- A typhoon struck the town last evening and raged until morning. The British dispatch boat saved. Great damage and loss of life occurred among the native craft, but it is impossible as yet to ascertain the full ex-

During the typhoon the British gunboats Tweed and Firebrand and the coast defense ironclad Wivern were in great danger as they were dragging their anchors and the Firebrand was shipping heavy seas and rapidly filling. All fired distress signals and the British torpedo boat destroyer Otter proceeded to their assistance. It was dangerous undertaking owing to the furious sea that was running and the great masses of floating wreckage. The Otter succeeded, however, in saving the crew of the British atch boat Sandpiper with the exception of one man; and, the weather moderating, she also saved the other vessels mentioned. Another hour of the hurricane and all would have been lost.

The troops at Kowloon, who were housed in tents and temporary barracks, were in a pitiable plight. The tents and mat sheds collapsed and the men and animals were exposed to the fury of the storm. The hospital roof was stripped off, but luckily there were no casualties. An admiralty dredge in the Canton river was capsized and two of her crew were drowned. Many houses were blown down, causing twelve

> In addition to the above Miss Barton gave out the following statement: "The change in temperature from the warm weather which has prevailed almost constantly since the storm, on the 8th of September, to very chilly weather, which began here a few days ago, is causing suffering among the thousands of homeless people who are living in tents on the beach, in dilapidated storm-damaged houses, and in shacks constructed out of the debris of the storm It will be almost a miracle if pneumonia and kindred diseases do not follow the cold spell if it continues, and further cold weather is inevitable from this time on The appeals which were sent out for building material have not met with the generous responses that followed the appeal for food and clothing which went out immediately after the storm. The apparent apathy which the appeals for building material have met is probably due to certain statements that were circulated to the effect that Galveson had been well supplied by the provisions and clothing that were sent feeling that seems to prevail generally throughout the country that it would be unwise to rebuild the city in the face of the possibility of a recurrence of the storm. It seems to be entirely overlooked that the business houses and about one-third of the dwelling houses were left standing, although generally badly damaged. The city with its vast business and over 30,000 inhabitants, are here and must remain, but the problem of providing shelter or homes of the modern character for the thousands of homeless is the most treublesome that confronts the relief committee. The thousands of dollars that the committee has been able to set aside for repairing damaged buildings and constructing others amounts to much less than 5 per cent. of the actual needs of the people in that di-

> That the Latter's Real Name Was James Hey Pearcey, and His Heir Florence Ashcroft.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10 .- Jacob J. Haffner, who has spent a greater part of the last fifteen years in state prisons, made a statement to-day and produced letters and decuments concerning Thomas H. Blythe, the multi-millinoaire who died in San Francisco in 1883. The papers were turned over to Lawyer E. B. Southworth, who has been retained by Haffner to press his claims to a share of the Blythe estate.

The documents include what purports to be an original will of "James Hey Pearcey, otherwise known as Thomas H. Blythe,' dated March 4, 1881, signed in the presence of Haffner and one James Blow, of Los Angeles, Cal. This will appoints Haffner forward in large quantities and also to a as executor of the estate without bonds and names as residuary legatee "My adopted daughter, Miss Florence Pearcey, otherwise known as Miss Florence Ashcroft, now residing with her mother, Mrs. Julia Ashcroft, at London, England."

The third article in the will reads: "I give, devise and bequeath to my brother, Charles Penrcey, of Chicago, Ill., $50,000." It is under this article that Haffner makes his claim to a share of the Blythe estate. It is on record in the Probate Court of Cock county, Illinois, that Charles Pearcey died at the West Side Hospital in Chicago in November, 1897. Haffner was in Dannemora prison at this time. Charles Pearcey had lived for several years at No. 224 West Madison street, Chicago. He was practically a hermit. There was great surprise when it was found that he had left $42,900 in United States and Chicago city bonds. Heirs were advertised for, and Albert Pearcey, of Glenville, W. Va., who professed to be a brother, appeared. Upon his testimony the property was divided share and share alike, between himself and his five brothers and sisters. Haffner was released from Dannemora prison in April last. He went to Chicago and produced what purported to be the last will and testament of Charles Pearcey. He engaged Lawyer William P. Black, of Chicago, as his counsel and endeavored to have the estate reopened. The lawyer carried proceedings to a point where a considerable fund for expenses was necessary and when this was not forthcoming dropped the matter. This was in September last. The will, which is now on file in Cook county, Illinois, contains the clause: "I give, devise and bequeath to my brother, Blythe, San Francisco, Cal., $2,000." There are other bequests, amounting in all to contracted for-in fact, the regular manlegatee and executor. This will is dated of their employes. 25, 1894. Haffner seeks to recover $30,000 under the will of Charles H. Pearcey | weeks ago, when the heads of the various and also $50,000 from the Blythe estate. which, as he claims, was willed to Charles H. Pearcey and should fall to him as Pearcey will.

GAGE WILL NOT RESIGN.

He Will Act as Secretary of the Treasury Until March 4, at Least.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.-The Commercial Advertiser says: "It was announced at national Republican headquarters to-day that Secretary of the Treasury Lyman J. Gage will resign from the treasury and that Charles G. Dawes, controller of the currency, will be asked to succeed him. Mr. Gage is going back to be president of the First National Bank of Chicago. The announce ment was positive and from an authoritative source. The change will be made before the expiration of the President's first term.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10 .- Secretary Gage denied emphatically this afternoon that he contemplated resigning from the Cabinet before the expiration of President McKinley's first term. As to his future movements, he said he had not yet made up his mind what he would do after March 4.

CHICAGO, Nov. 10.-D. R. Forgan, vice president of the First National Bank, said to-day that he knew nothing about the reported contemplated resignation. "But," he added, "the report that Mr. Gage will resume the presidency of the First National Bank is without foundation."

Mr. Hanna Would Not Discuss It. NEW YORK, Nov. 10 .- Senator Hanna left for Cleveland and Mr. Manley started for Maine this evening. Senator Hanna Octave Thanet Considers that He Is said he was going to take a long rest. He added, speaking of the rumored retirement of Secretary Gage, that he had not heard of and would not discuss it.

TENDERED TO UNCLE SAM.

Chicago Willing to Surrender Its Costly Drainage Channel.

CHICAGO, Nov. 10 .- Chicago has officially tendered its $34,000,000 drainage channel to the United States government. The sanitary district trustees have memorialized the chief engineer of the government through the deep waterway commission, now in the city, and that official body will transmit the memorial to Congress in December. The memorial contains a direct tender from the sanitary district of the channel to the general government under the terms of the sanitary district of Illinois, which contains a clause reading as

"When such channel shall be completed and the water turned therein to the amount of 300,000 cubic feet of water per minute the same is hereby declared a navigable stream, and whenever the general government shall improve the Desplaines and Illinois rivers for navigation, to connect with this channel, said general government shall have full control over the same for navigation purposes, but not to interfere with its control for sanitary or drainage

The drainage channel has reached the ondition provided for by this clause of the statutes. In order to accept this gift according to law the general government will have to expend over $15,000,000, or less than half what Chicago has spent upon the channel. In this connection the importance of the canal is urged as a water route from the great lakes to the Gulf of Mexico if the Desplaines and Illinois rivers are improved The memorial says the canal is deeper than the draft of any lake vessel and is wide enough to float three abreast, but is commercially useless to the Nation owing to the lack of a proper channel in the Illinois and Desplaines rivers. TURNED OVER TO EMPLOYES.

Heads of Departments to Manage Big Department Store. Milwaukee Sentinel. What is a distinct innovation in mercantile circles here will be made at Gimbel's to-morrow when a "department managers' sale" will begin and continue for wo weeks. For a fortnight the entire business of the great establishment wiil be conducted by the heads of the various departments instead of by the regular management. Prices will be fixed by them James H. Pearcey, known as Thomas H. special sales will be arranged, special window displays made, special advertising about $10,000, and Haffner is made residuary | agers will temporarily abdicate in favor

The novel plan was decided upon some departments were called together and the idea explained at length. A good deal of discussion followed and then the heads of residuary legatee under the Charles H. departments organized for the work, electing Fred Everts as chairman. Then committees were appointed on bargains, advertising, window display, s.gns, extra help, floor space and display, and preparation were made for a mammoth "buyers' sale which will begin to-morrow and in which everyone of the many bargains to be offered has been previously submitted to a bargain committee made up of Messrs Zimmer, Koehler, Clark, Everts and the Misses Looby and Samuels. The committees have been meeting every day to talk over their work and get things into shape. Yesterday the bargains and advertising committees had interesting ses sions getting ready for the extensive ad vertising that is to be done. The various heads appeared before the committees with samples of the goods which they proposed to sell at special rates and on these the committees sat in judgment, rejecting some, agreeing to others and making sug-gestions by the wholesale, so that the meeting, to the newspaper representatives who were present, became a most interesting and valuable lesson in the mercantile

There are forty-two departments in the store and each of the managers of these will some time during the coming fortnight run a big "ad" in all the city press setting forth the special bargains which will be offered in his special corner of the store on a certain cay. The greatest of interest has been arcused both in the store and out and the results of the novel experiment will be watched with interest. In the meantime, it is safe to say that there will be some smart selling going on. for each department head is determined to make a reputation for business sagacity and big bargains.

PRAISE FOR THE MODERATE MAN.

Unappreciated.

At a meeting of club women held-recenty at Lincoln, Neb., Miss Alice French (Octave Thanet) talked about repose and humor and their alleviating effects upon life and matrimonial association. She advised every woman to try humor, knowing that even if a sense of humor be lacking the same thing in the way of a state of mind or a certain way of looking at events and trials comparatively may be cultivated and finally accomplished. An innate and developed sense of humor is only an abiding concept of proportion and of the true rela-NAVASOTA, Tex., Nov. 10 .- The trouble tion of things. A humorist sees small things and is not deceived because there are a number of smaller things in the same neighborhood. As an illustration of this popular author's actical application of her own advice the ollowing extract from her address upon The Unappreciated Moderate Man" is iven: "The reformer may be the pioneer of civilization, but he is not the whole

ush. After him come the men who build cities and lay railways and foster the arts and, in fine, create that vast and complex machine that we call civilization. After the man with the working plan, the moderate moderation in reform as well as elsewhere, whereas the enthusiast lifts a clarion cry, 'No compromise with evil!' and demands it be forthwith swept off the earth. He is he can't wait two minutes for it. The moderate man is doing his unobtrusive best in every walk of life. The moderate woman is doing hers. She is a good wife, a good mother, a good friend and neighbor. Generally speaking she does not call aloud and spare not for her rights. She merely takes them when she needs them . . as I fumble my own way into a consideration of the situation the figure of the moderate man seems to me the noblest and most pathetic figure on the scene. He is under fire from his own familiar friends he is attacked by the extremist on both sides and he does not even know all the comrades who are fighting for the same cause; yet, harassed, wearied, goaded, he doggedly fights on with a jest instead of a groan and never suspects that he is either a hero or a martyr."

Unattractive Frenchmen. Philadelphia Record.

"I met one night," said the returned traveler, "Pierre Loti in a cafe. To the lover of the sad prose of this Don Juan, who has written so very much concerning his personal conquests over women, the first glimpse of the man himself is a shocking disappointment. Loti is as puny, ugly and untidy a little wretch as I have ever seen. The woman who was with me at the time said afterward that she would as lief touch a toad as touch the flesh of the exquisite Loti. The character best known in the Bohemian cafes of Paris is old Bibl who was the right-hand man of the poet Verlaine. Bibi, with his long, thick, snowy hair, has a beautiful and magnificent head, but he is in his dress and habits as shabby and dirty as an American hobo. No one knows how he lives, unless it is by his magical way of getting things for you. Mention what you will-picture, book or bibelot-Bibi will say: 'I'll get it for you; and away he goes, and in an hour or two he is back again, carrying it in his hand.
